

Nashyla Thomas- About Me

My name is Nashyla Thomas. I've always been told, "A name is worth a thousand conversations." I was named after an a-cappella music group from the 90s after spending a full day being called "Baby Weathers" (my maiden name). My friends and family call me Shyla.

I have a Bachelor of Science in Healthcare Management and I am currently enrolled in graduate school for Healthcare Management. My line of work encompasses the empathy I possess for people. I'm employed to ensure patients receive the highest quality of care available and to ensure that staff feels and knows that they matter.

On Sundays, you can find my family and me at church.

Typically you'll see me with a baby on my hip bouncing to the music or singing on the worship team. We enjoy our friends, family, and spending our spare time hanging out with them.

I'm blessed to be invited to join the board of Indiana Salute to Veterans; Where they care about people. Where everything they do is to show those people who've sworn to protect our freedom, are recognized. In summary, I'm lucky to be a part of something amazing. Something that embodies selflessness. Something that resonates with my views.
